THE SYSTEM

The decision makers

1

Dominating the position of superintendent of schools for nearly two decades, Thurman Smith continues to confront the many issues surrounding the school system. Making decisions that directly and indirectly affect the student body, he works closely with the administration, faculty and school board.

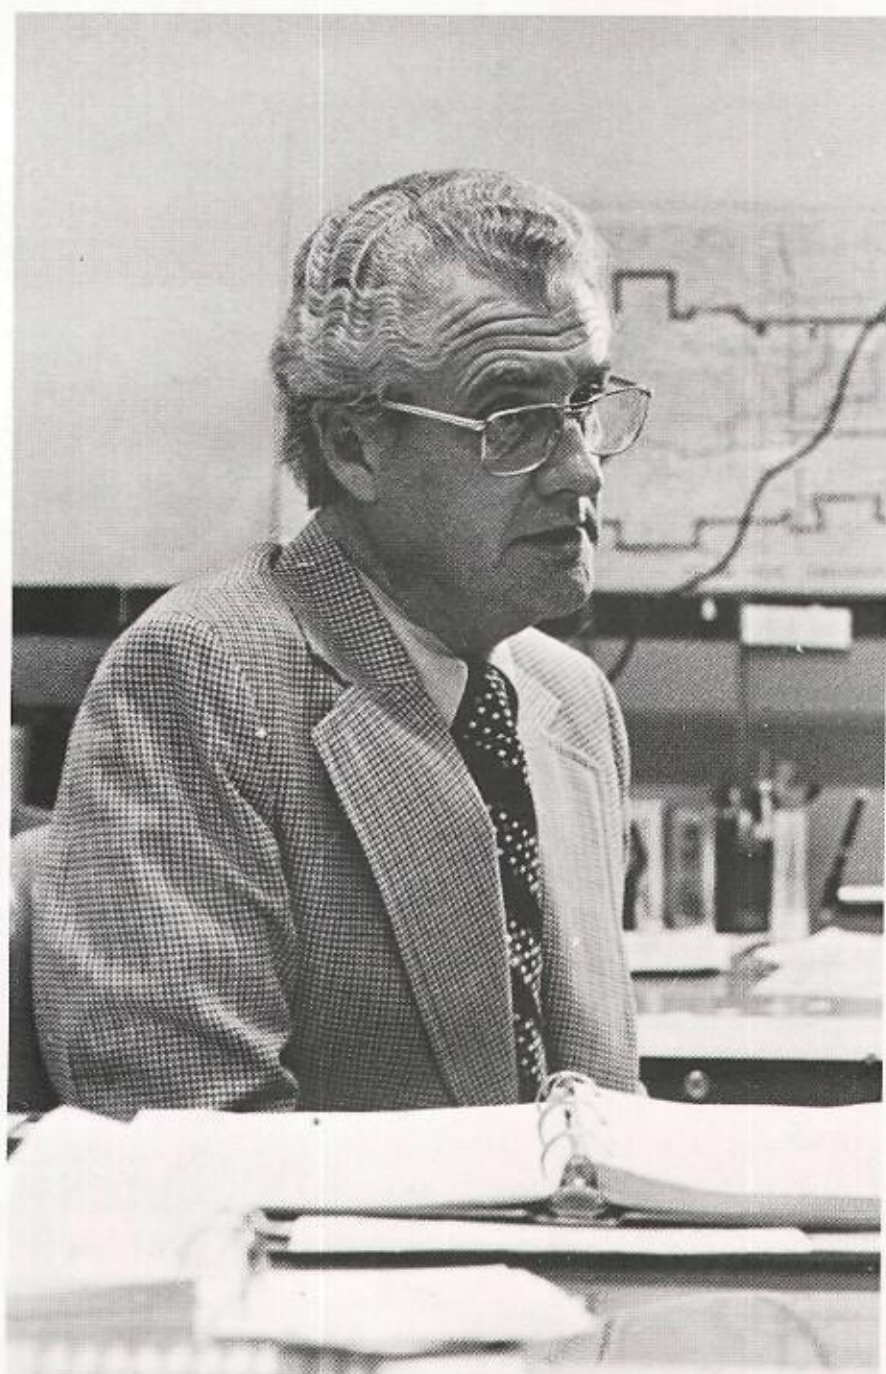

Keeping an inventory of all school equipment, planning individual school schedules and supervising adult education are a few responsibilities of Deputy Superintendent Joe Roberts. Care of transportation is another time-consumer for the number two man.

Buying textbooks, heading pupil personnel and serving as public information officer keeps Assistant Superintendent Norman Crowder busy. Along with these duties, he assists in recruiting and employing teaching personnel, coordinates federal programs and is the representative for the district in the Vocational Education Division of the state department.

1. Dedication, tempered by years of experience, is shown by Mr. Roberts. 2. Serious contemplation—characteristic of Mr. Smith. 3. With the increasing cost of materials, Mr. Crowder reviews the budget.

Meeting only once a month, the Springdale School Board faces lengthy agendas concerning all school projects and problems, the most controversial being the two-mile busing limit. High school departments were updated by allowing each to choose their own grading scale.

Complaints from city residents about egging and disciplinary problems from students during homecoming week brought about a feeling that students were too immature to consider granting open campus.

All educational and pleasure trips by clubs and organizations had to receive a positive answer from the board. Proving themselves flexible and lenient, approvals were granted for trips as near as Fayetteville and Little Rock and as distant as St. Louis, Hawaii and Mexico.

1. Determining policies to adopt is a difficult task for the school board. 2. Concerned parents support Unity trip to Hawaii. 3. President Pat Singletary presides over a meeting.

The buck stops here

It's that old 5% that's got Mr. Sprague down. The 5% that gives in to impulses like the donut shop, Beaver Lake in the spring, a vague description of "running errands" or going to the doctor nine times in one month.

As SHS attendance officer, Mr. Sprague has the prerogative of handing over a pen to sign the checkout book or saying "Stay put." With an average of 50 to 75 checkouts a day, he stays occupied with a finger on the dial and a receiver to his ear, verifying students' excuses with parents.

The only thing he really dislikes about his job, he says, is the impersonalness of it. The only students he really gets to know are the students who reappear in his office frequently—the same old 5%.

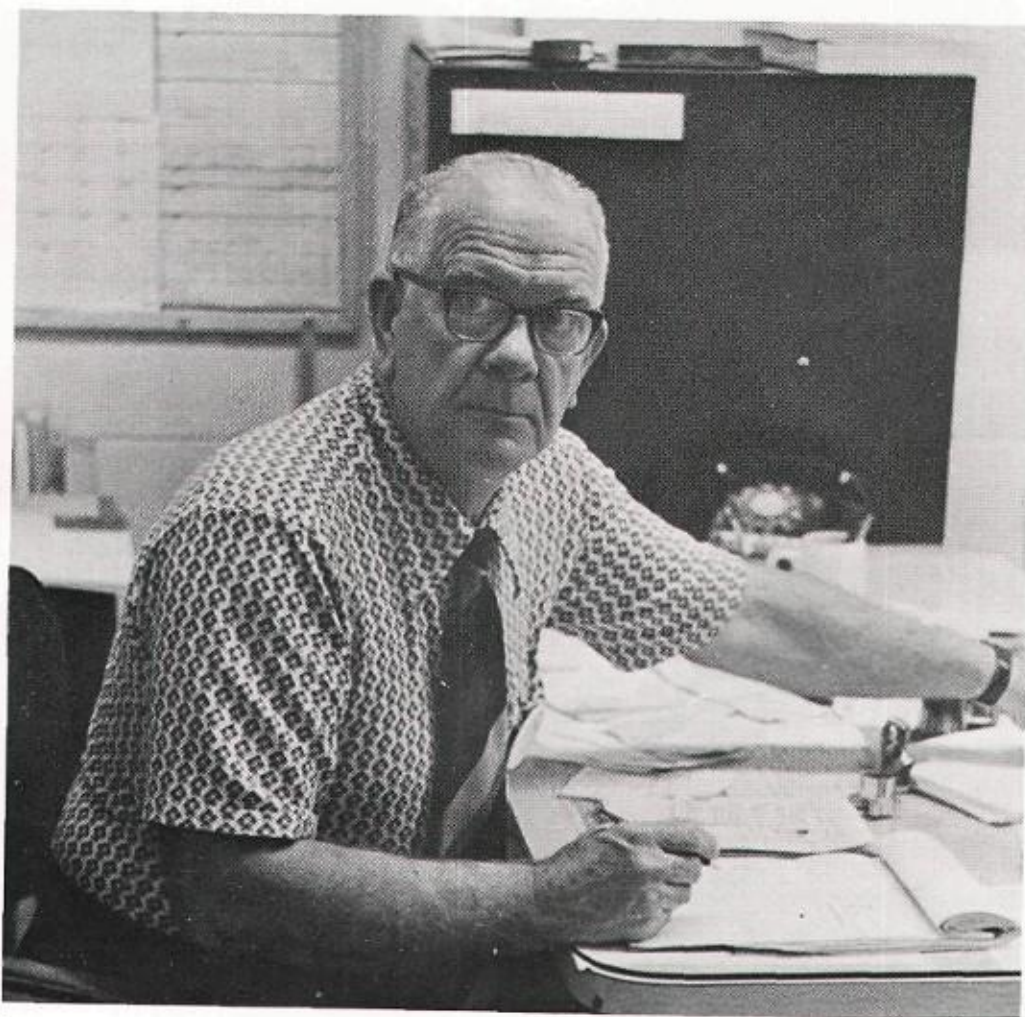

Mr. Moore had a new and time-consuming job this year in the adult education program utilizing SHS classrooms. He believes many adults who never graduated from high school have a sudden interest in earning a diploma due to the economic pinch.

As for high school students, Mr. Moore spends a flattering amount of time with them on his mind too. He stresses self-improvement coupled with the realization that high school is not the only place to learn, but it is one of the easiest.

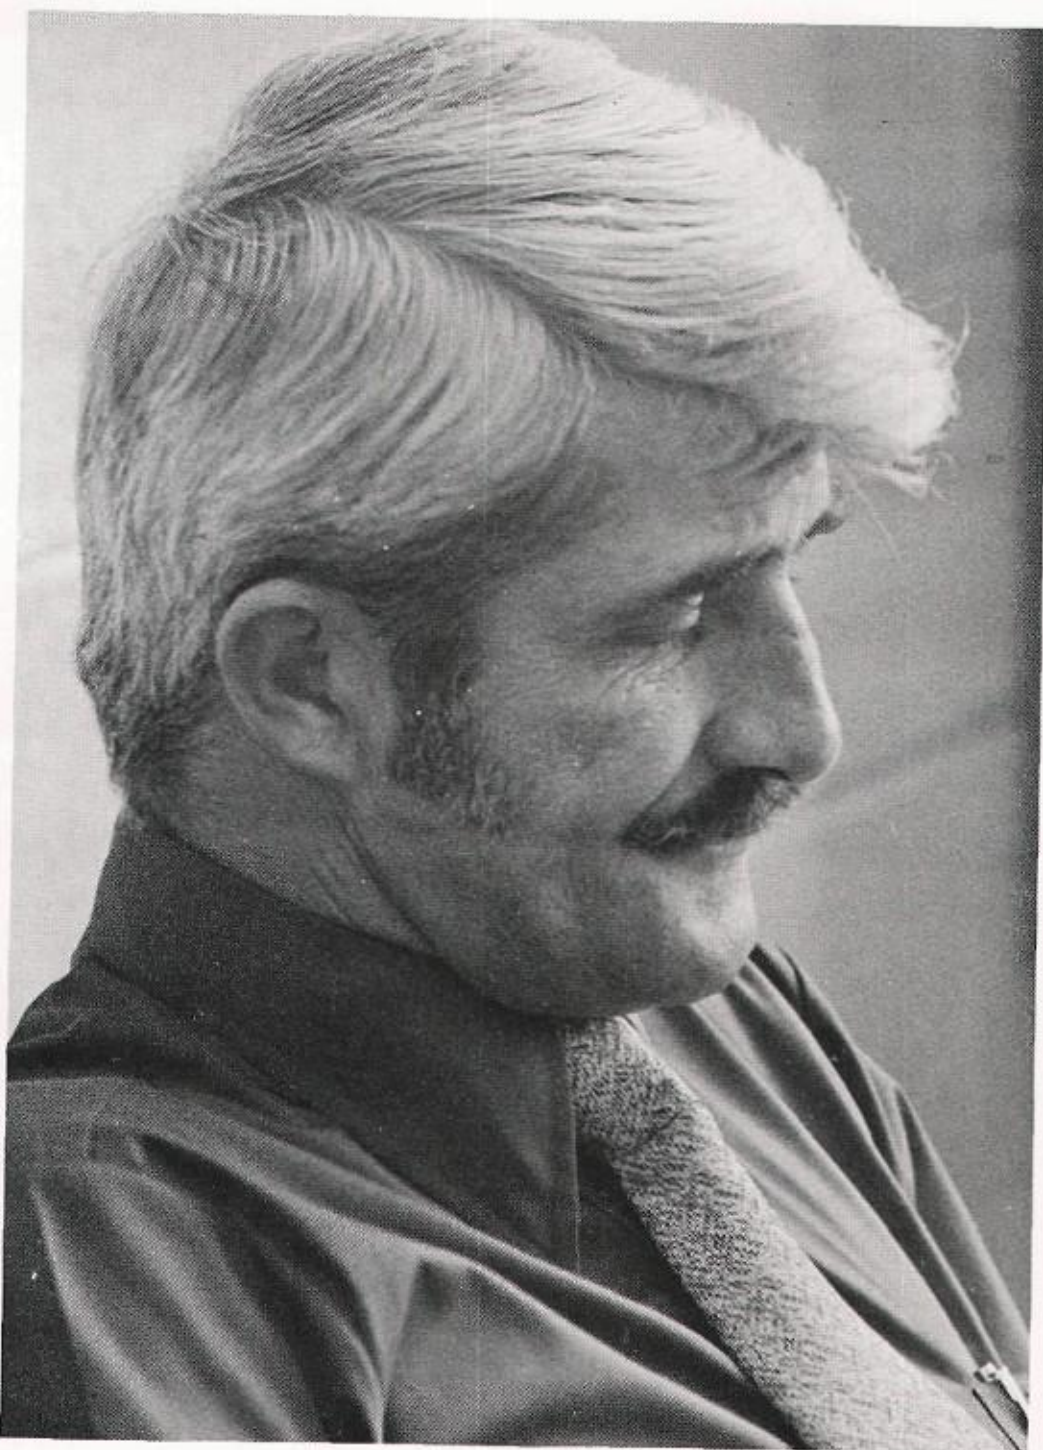

His life outside the high school building is non-stop. Mr. Moore says he could live three lifetimes and still not get it all done because there are very few things he couldn't become interested in. His extra-curricular activities encompass refinishing antiques, clock collecting, renovating old houses and the sports of fishing, hunting, camping and golfing.

Seeing Mr. Moore in a suit and tie five days a week, it's hard to imagine him dressed in anything else. But maybe some students might stumble across Mr. Moore on a weekend, in an old shirt with overalls, a baseball cap, with an unshaven face and half a cigar in his mouth. Seeing is believing, and it might prove true that principals are people too.

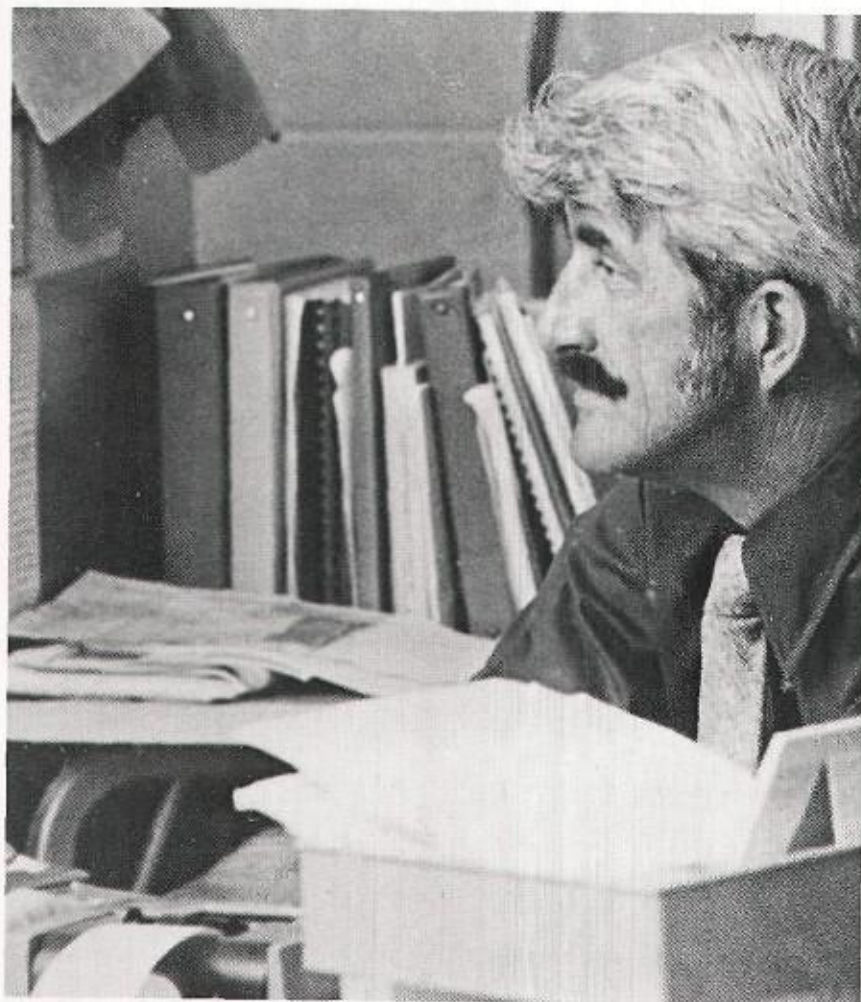

1. Overwhelming problems of attendance are tackled by Mr. Sprague.
2. Mr. Moore's concern is the key to SHS success.

1

Class and club officers often head to Mr. Stamp's office hoping for approval of activities or funds. His frequent answer of, "Let me think about this," leaves many wondering and sometimes searching for another project.

Junior and senior attendance and discipline brings Mr. Stamps closer to the student body. It's ironic that his goal is to keep students in school, yet his only disciplinary threat is to kick them out. Mr. Stamps explains he does his best to reason with students before suspending or expelling them.

Commenting on students quitting school to work, Mr. Stamps feels that such action is forgetting the future, and looking only for short-term success.

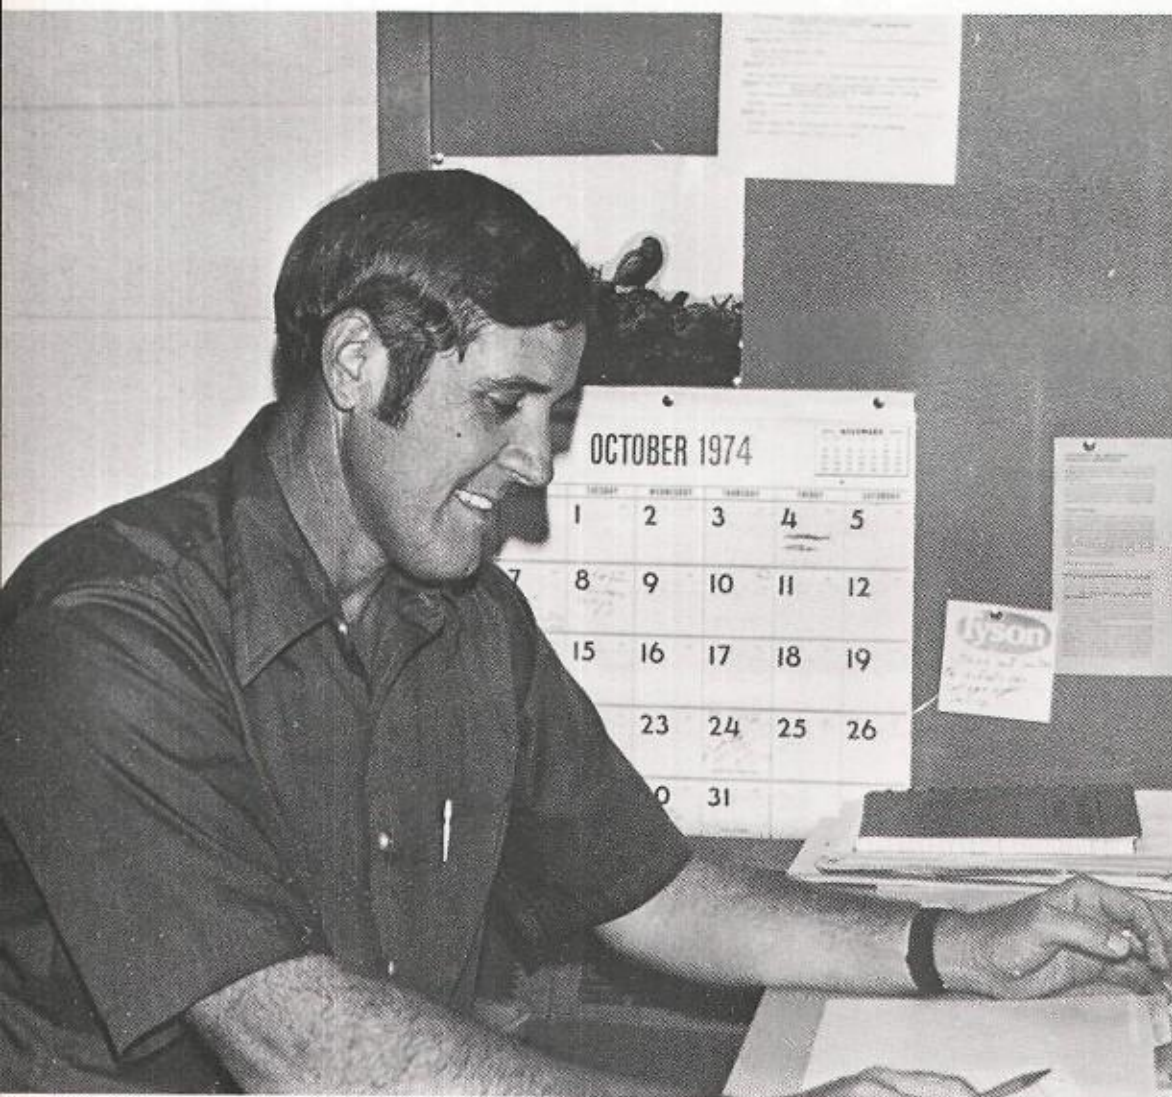

1. Trapped behind tons of book work, one of the many obligations of Mr. Moore.
2. Enforcing rules and regulations is a task for Mr. Stamps. 3. No matter how hard you try, he's always there.

Helping students from A to Z

With wails of "But the teacher just doesn't like me," the counselors reason, advise and sometimes end up juggling students' schedules. Mrs. Manley, Mrs. Stephens and Mr. Dewett stay busy with each class trying to make students and teachers happy with selections, either for the present or in preparation for the future.

Ambition carries science forward

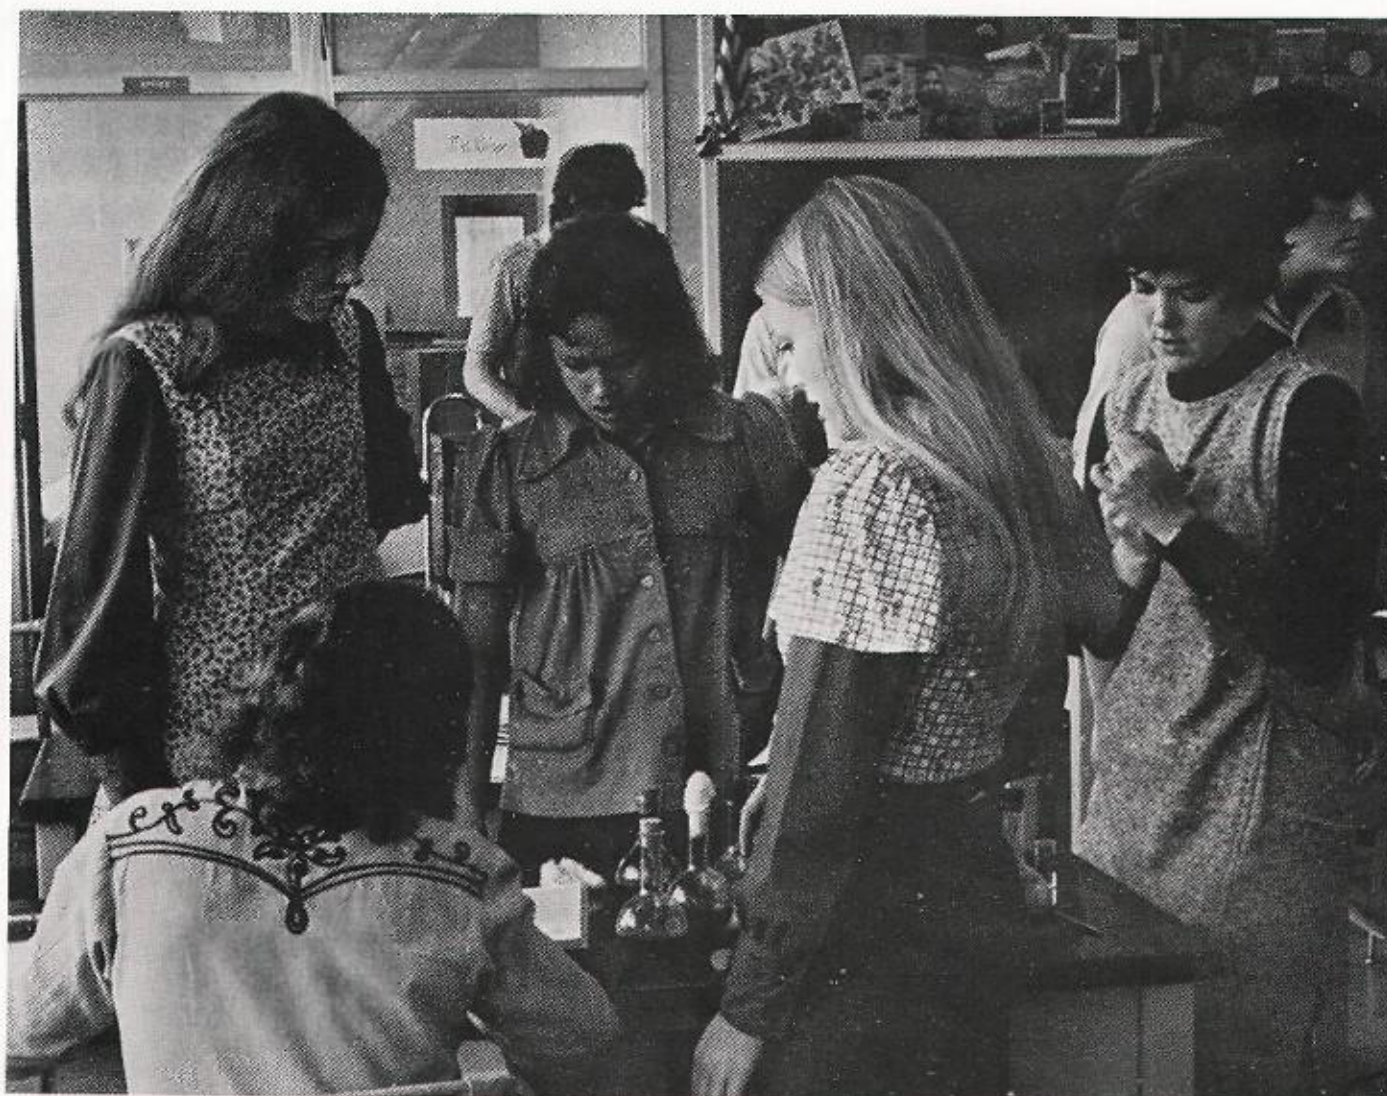

With accurate course descriptions and better counseling, the science department once again increased in student enrollment, especially in chemistry and physics.

Participation in non-required extracurricular activities also increased as nearly 100 students were involved in the science fair, club and research papers.

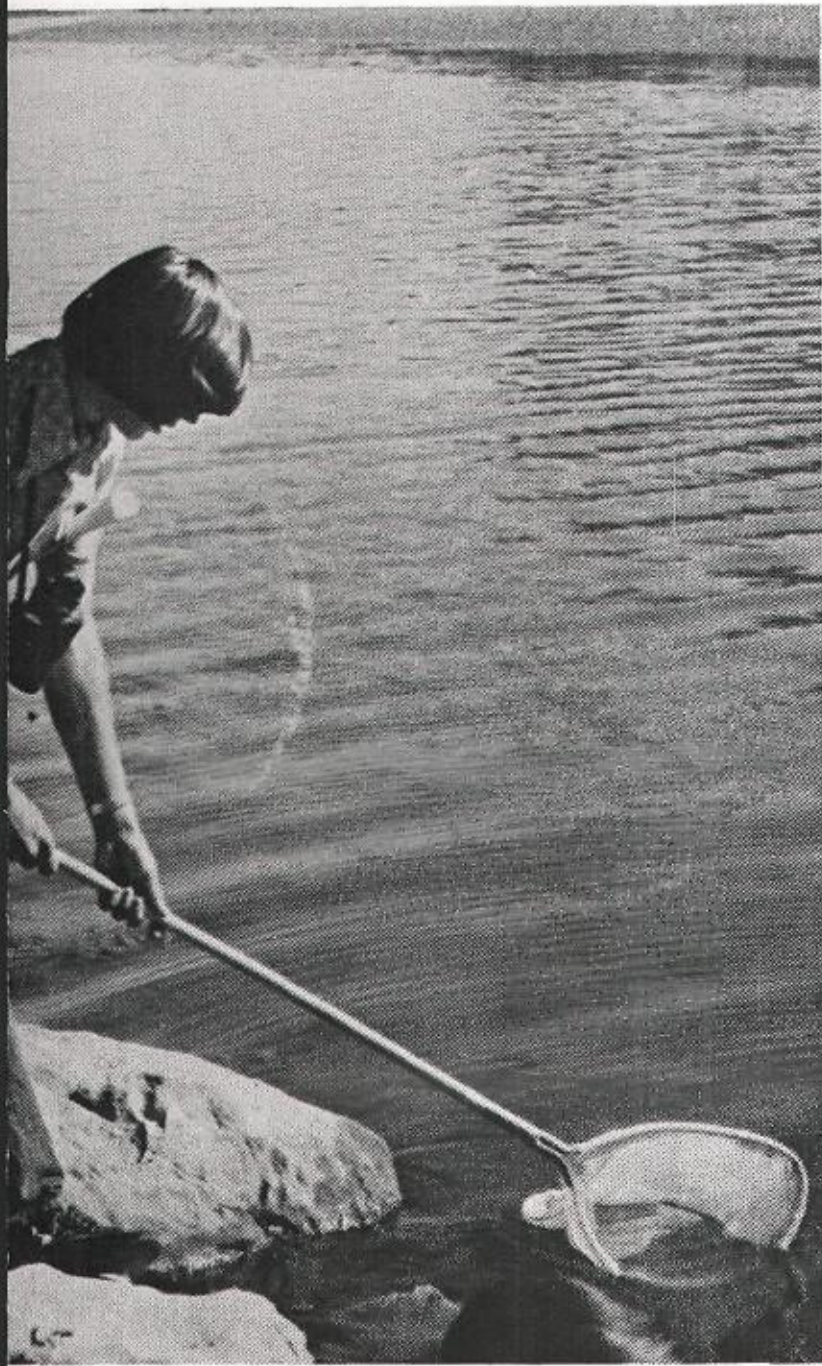

SHS has one of the best high school programs in the state with the faculty constantly looking to improvements.

A sense of expression

Seeing the clutter and disorganization of yearbook layouts, newspaper articles and Bulldog Spotlight scripts, Journalism I students find they have something to look forward to?

Quick, easy lessons on screaming effectively, applying make-up, facial expressions, body language and composure that add up to a performance, drama is a way of expression involving the senses and imagination. A talent that can be expanded in a class, but not taught from scratch; something that must be felt.

As the classes and French Club were closely entwined, thoughts of films and parties were discussed along with studies, both leading to a greater knowledge of French culture and language.

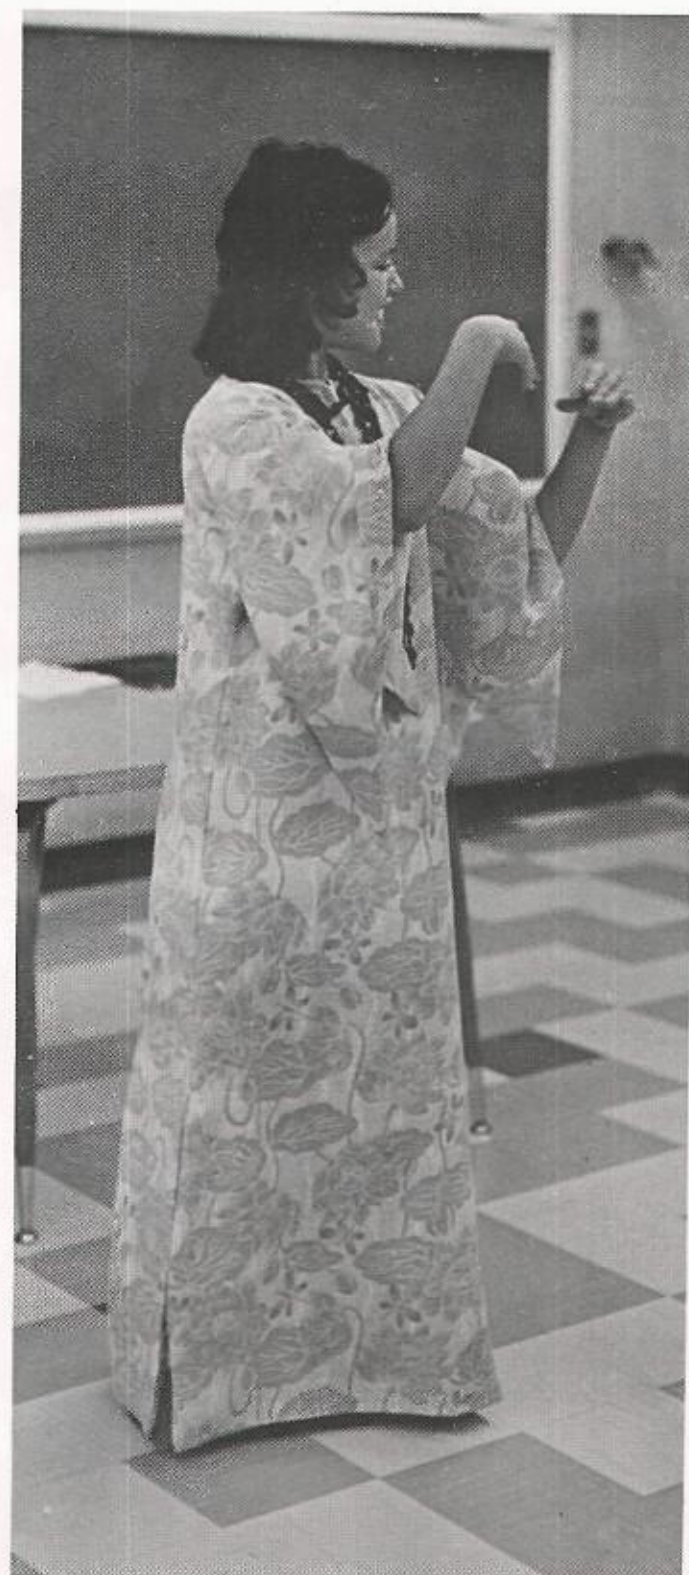

Although foreign language is not always necessary for college admission, interest in Spanish increased enough that Spanish III and IV were added to the foreign language curriculum. Laboratory exercises gave students a chance to hear native speakers with attempts to imitate.

Relating to today

Wondering what it would be like to live in a cave, fight in the Revolutionary War, smuggle prohibition moonshine or stand trial for Watergate are divisions in eras covered in an extensive history department.

For those interested in each country, World Geography is offered.

Psychology students discuss people's behavioral habits and take tests ranging from ink blots to conditioning "guinea pig" volunteers to jerk their hand at the cue of a spoon hitting a can. Sociology I and II students focus on the effect of environment on society.

The way to communication

With literature ranging from Planet of the Apes to Major English Romantic Poems, the English department continued to offer a great range of semester courses.

Basic Grammar students are still puzzled by "objects of infinitive phrases which function as adverbs." Advanced Grammar provided college background material.

The bulge in everyone's jean pocket was the dictionary needed in order to talk to the students who really took an interest in "Words" and "Words Words." Further study into word origins was revealed in "Language: An approach to Meaning."

Stressing individualism, creative writing classes wrote either short stories or poems. For an honest evaluation by fellow students and teachers, authors read their creations to the class, hoping to portray feelings effectively.

Students wanting to just sit around and watch television found things different in Film Media classes. Lively discussion and constructive criticism required a closer look at the films and programs.

Math: you can count on it

Stacks of unfinished worksheets, crumpled scratch sheets and worn out erasers added to the cluttered business of solving even the most basic math problems.

The math department offers courses ranging from Math Skills to Trigonometry; from adding and subtracting to logarithms.

It's not much comfort for a math teacher to inform students that the speed of class material coverage is in preparation for college.

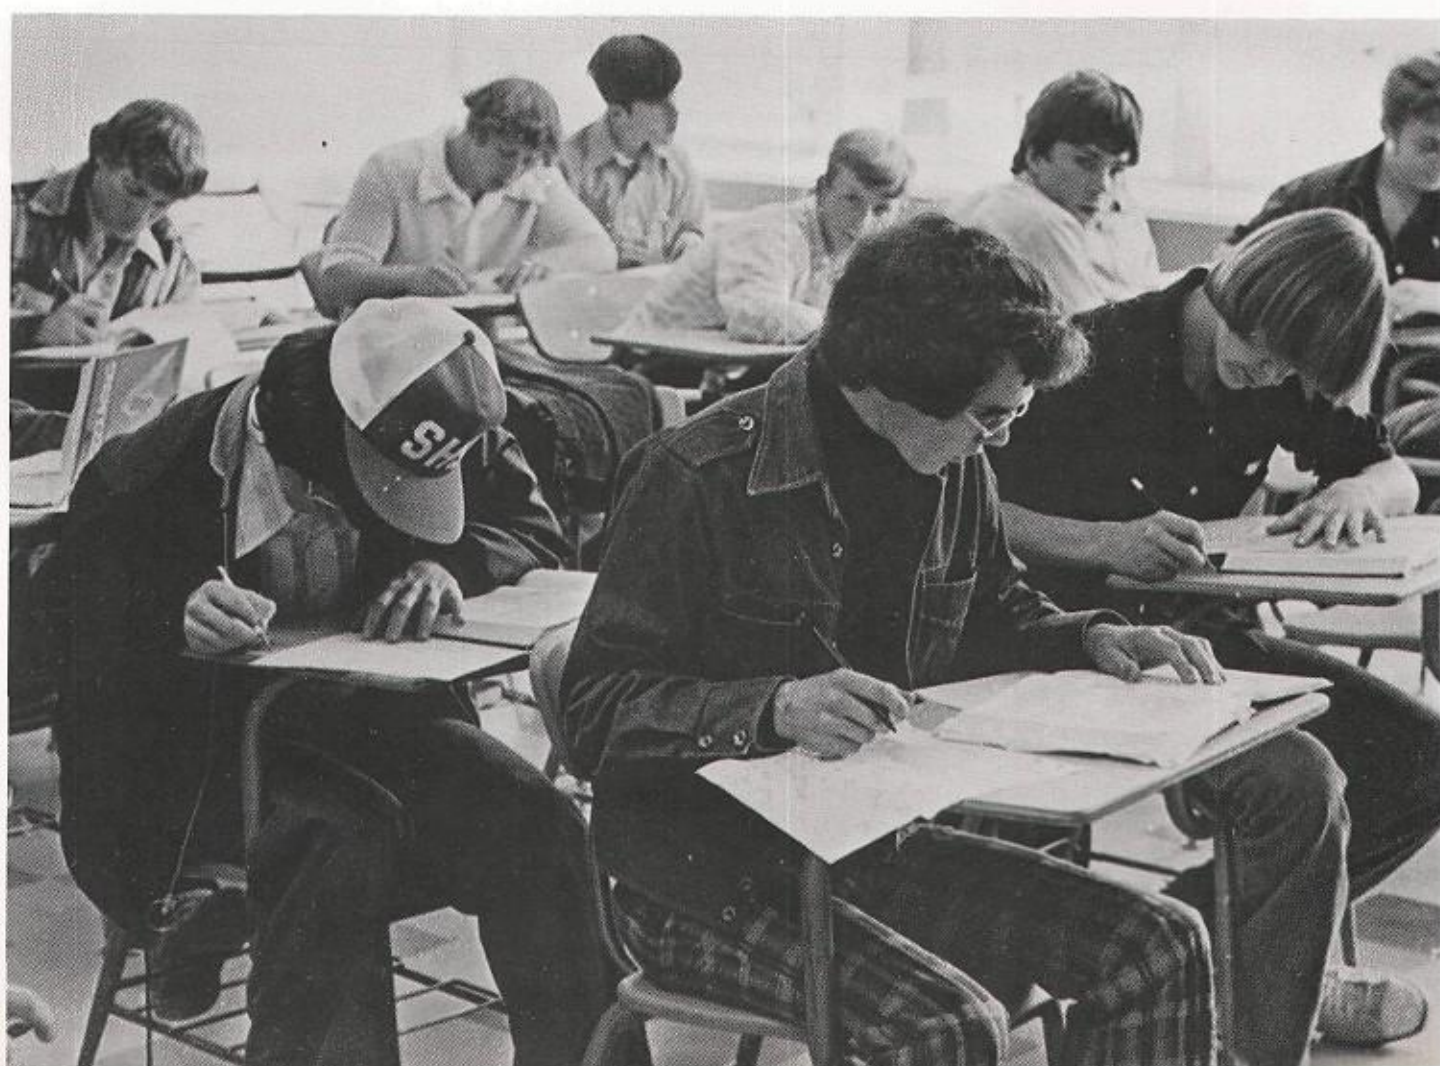

"I'm lost!" brains scream. Teachers responded with lengthy board explanations, hoping to help students surprise parents with semester A's.

Better acquainted after a full year with a new director, band students rejuvenated rank as one of the best in the state. Contests in marching and performing yielded many awards and trophies as the group continued as one of the major spirit-raisers at SHS.

With increased support from various groups, chorus became one of the most active organizations at SHS. Boys' Chorus, Girls' Chorus, Unity and the A cappella choir all stayed busy giving public performances and participating in community service projects.

Freshly-sharpened pencils, blank paper and unused paints challenged art students' creativity and ability. Art I provided beginning students knowledge in perspective, color, copper enameling, interior decorating, block printing and papier mache. Drawing and painting, for the more advanced student, consisted entirely of painting. Commercial art, for the possibly career-oriented artist, increased knowledge in advanced designs.

A practical approach: the business department

From any place in the c-wing: "Eyes on copy—Type!" Then, a mad rush of keys and nearly instantly 36 words and a comma in a minute with only six errors.

Down the hall, a quieter approach to practical business courses in business machines. Accounting and shorthand give students fits, as they gain first-hand experience with exercises that are true-to-life.

For the student's benefit

Assisting dentists . . . changing tires . . . counting money at a local bank . . . typing invoices . . . servicing farm equipment . . . spilling cokes . . . planning hospital menus . . . burning hamburgers . . . stocking groceries . . . are all part of the work program provided SHS students by local employers, enabling students to increase their abilities in several fields.

Programs such as HOE and COE center on one specific area of occupation, while the more widespread programs, STAE, ICT, DE and CCE deal with agriculture, mechanics, sales and industrial fields.

The work program has benefited students, by preparing them for the "real world" after graduation; and employers, by giving young people a chance to prove themselves in a work-oriented society.

The backbone of SHS

1. Without the aid of the helpers, librarians would be lost. 2. The library provides audio-visual aids along with other references. 3. More planning is making for better school lunches this year. 4. The SHS cooks prepare over a thousand meals a day. 5. Have message: will deliver. 6. Filing absentees is an every hour on the hour job. 7. Mr. Johnson: the SHS jack-of-all-trades. 8. Mr. and Mrs. Cox attend their duties cheerfully.

A place to research, to hide during homeroom, to rendezvous with friends or to actually read, the library is kept in order by Mrs. Bennett, Mrs. Price and 41 helpers.

When the room temperature suddenly drops, when someone has ripped a go-team poster off the wall shredding it to the floor or when a light bulb has burned out, a janitor is a handy person to know . . . wherever he is.

Long hours of hard work and a dedicated spirit keep SHS spotless and the janitors to thank.

If your mom's hot on your getting a good lunch while you're at school, she can count on the SHS cooks. With four meals from which to choose, the cafeteria runs a close race with Taco Tico.

Due to the increase in students, and coupled with more complicated paper work, another secretary was added to lighten the office burden.

Typing the weekly calendar, filing papers and sending out the dreaded green and blue notes from the attendance office, made up the secretaries' routine duties.

Greeting people at the prison-like window occupied much of their time as they answered questions from information-seeking students and lost parents.

DOG DAYS

Homecoming, 1974

This year, according to Mr. Moore, there was not necessarily more egging, but it was more flagrant than in the past. So, until a day before the scheduled parade, class and clubs wasted money, effort and time on their floats. 1974 Homecoming—the year of no parade.

Student Council sponsored the events of the week; boot, overall, hat and red and white days were observed by students and some teachers. 1974 Homecoming—the year of more spirit.

The traditional assembly to present the queen and her court to the student body was held the afternoon before the big game. 1974 Homecoming—the year of Queen Jamie Jackson.

And the night finally arrived with stands crowded with excited fans. 1974 Homecoming—the year the Bulldogs beat the Siloam Springs Panthers, 20-7.

DEBBIE ROBLEE REIGNS

The second annual Colors Day, sponsored by Student Council brought recognition to both boys and girls basketball teams. Senior basketball girls Brenda Collins, Nancy Mounce, Linda McClellan and Jody Wyman were attended by Neal Simco, Richard Roberts and Randy Burdick. Becca Crowell, Melinn Armstrong and Carol Hawkins were escorted by senior basketball boys Kenny Lockhart, Richard Zachary and Jeff Watson. Secret balloting by the teams named Debbie Roblee Colors Day Sweetheart and Jim Moore Dreamboat.

A "Beat Fayetteville" pep assembly followed the procession. Although the Bulldogs lost to the highly-rated Purple Dogs, spirit was high at the informal dance following the game. Instead of the usual live band, two SHS students kept the music constant with a collection of 45's via professional equipment.

Eleven talents of singing, dancing, instrumental performance, gymnastics, drama and twirling greeted the crowd attending the 15th Annual Miss SHS Pageant. Mrs. Jan Moore directed the contest sponsored by the journalism department.

When formal parading and talents were completed, and a long, seemingly drawn-out deliberation was finally suffered through, Janis Partain was crowned Miss SHS. First Runner-up was Andrea Penzo and 2nd Runner-up, Miss Congeniality and the Spirit Award Winner was Kathy Vanzant.

Stu Cooperation, Stu Concern

Student Council got a new name this year along with new ideas. Renamed StuCo, the organization remained one of the busiest in the high school. A main complaint from non-members was a lack of dances, which may be a little petty compared to some of the things they did accomplish. The new smoking area went over big for the people who used it, but teachers lamented its disorder. Many felt the smokers were catered to. Time and effort, they thought, should be focused elsewhere . . . which brings up open campus, vending machines and the parking lot, a never-ending fight for rights. The Council also did many things most people never heard about. They adopted an orphan overseas, collected for charities, sponsored Teacher Appreciation Day, changed the calendar monthly and had a Christmas party for the Day Care Center. Debbie Roblee was described by one of the council members as "one of the best things that ever happened to Student Council."

Teen Involvement

Teen Involvement is putting a high school student in an elementary or junior high school student's point of view. Pressures, problems and confusion that weren't a part of our younger days are hoped to be put down by Involvement people. Just somebody to talk it all out, listen and be concerned. The group is divided into classroom counselors and researchers. Counselors communicate directly with the kids and researchers are the important people behind the lines. In either role, involvement is the key feeling—and being needed.

SENIORS

... skipping cause you figure they wouldn't kick a senior out ... "Paste the Panthers," a float that never got finished ... taking Shakespeare just because you only need one more English credit to graduate ... writing in 'Beer Drinkers' as the class song that never quite made it ... pushing for a little recognition and respect from under-classmates ... listening to the guys talk about Fayetteville and sophomore women ... watching all your friends get engagement rings or acceptance letters and wondering what you're gonna do ... partying at the U of A just like real-live college students ... being most spirited class in pep rallies ... worrying how you did on the ACT test ... going to the last high school homecoming ... listening to President Matt Howard laugh over the intercom during the morning announcements ... getting into the habit of saying "der-der" ... counting the days until graduation, but the closer it gets, you can't help but be a little sad and a lot scared ... practice, practice, practice ... graduation; the last time the class of '75 sits together, remembering a wow senior year ...

A RECIPE FOR NO HOMECOMING OR ...

THE UNHOMECOMING?

Necessary ingredients:

1 catchy slogan
1 good-sized armory
At least one reliable sponsor
1 9' x 16' flat-bed trailer
72 hours of labor
23 hands

75' of chicken wire

1 8' x 12' sheet plywood
Approximately 10' of 2" x 4"
1 stereo (2 large speakers,
AM-FM radio, tape player and turntable) with several albums and tapes.

Special ingredients:

4000 squares of white napkins (at 10% discount from Wal-Mart)
3938 square yds. outdated newspaper
3 lbs. nails—5" in length
30 lbs. flour (damaged merchandise from Harp's at ½ price)
5 gals. tap H₂O
2 gals. various colored enamel paint
6-12 oz. cans of red spray paint

Mix all special ingredients thoroughly and toss in a few dozen eggs before combining with necessary ingredients. Add a few smashed thumbs, a dash of determination and more eggs.

Let set 24 hours before adding special effect.

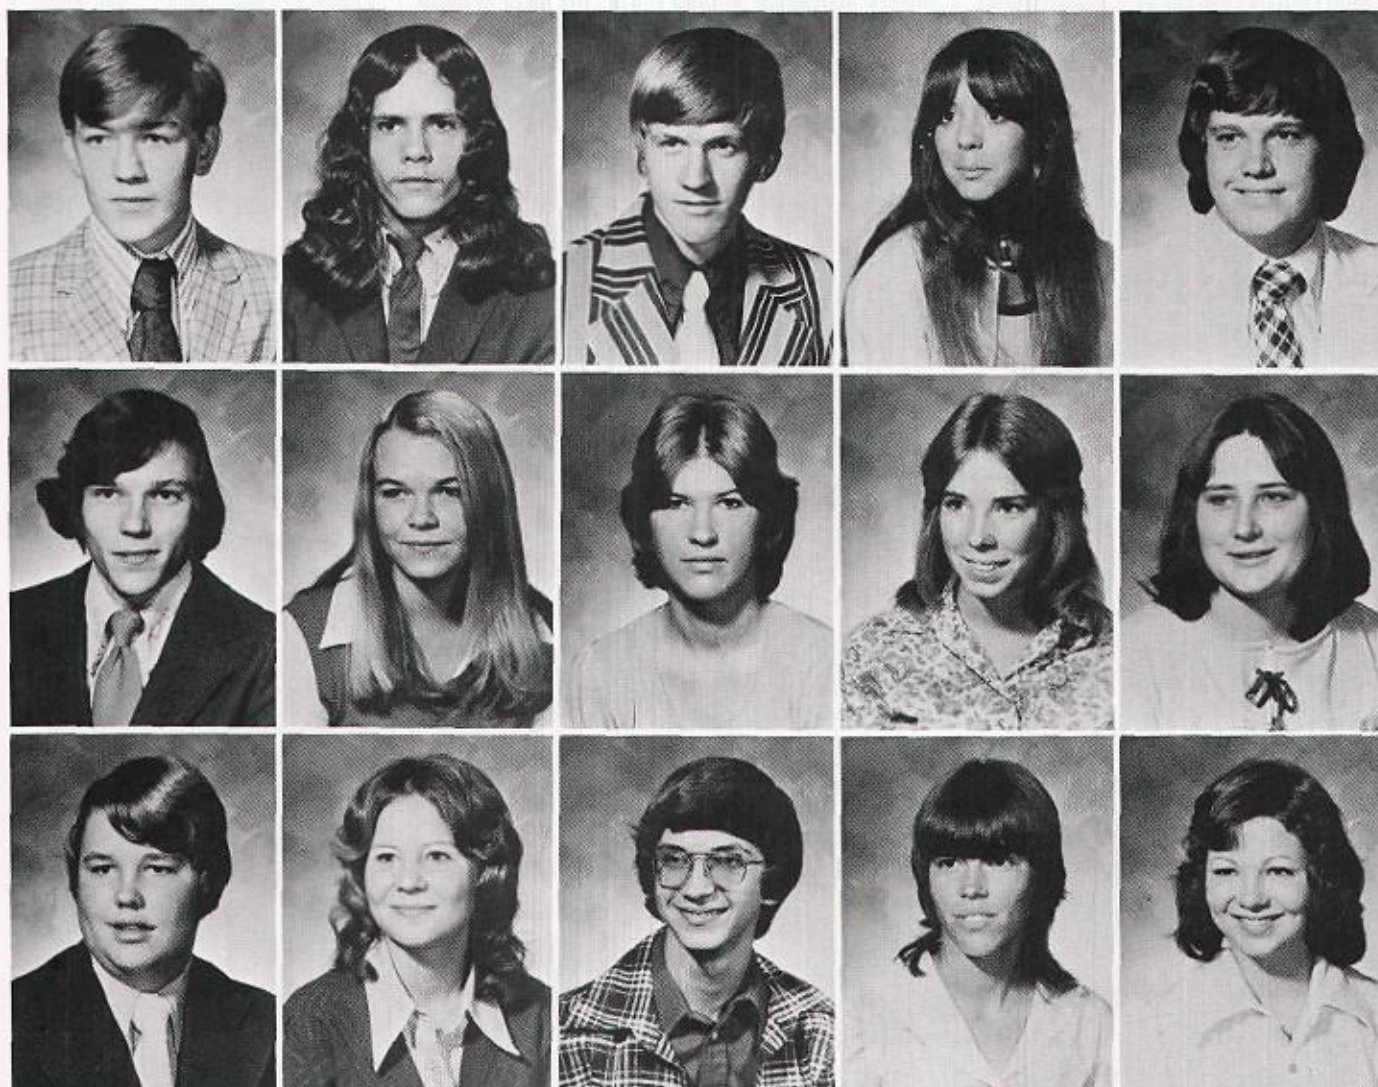

Special effect:

Combine all above ingredients with:

2 bushels tomatoes
1 bushel of assorted fruits and vegetables

Top it off with 6 cases or 2,728 singles (for best results, use extra large eggs)

Thus producing 1 infuriated principal, unmerciful policemen and several irritated parents.

Good leadership pulls juniors together

"Clowns to the left of me,
Jokers to the right,
Here I am,
Stuck in the middle . . ."

Having the security of being neither a sophomore or a senior, juniors slide through the year with lotsa laughs. The junior year is the one to make it off the JV and on to the varsity; the first year to really have a chance at the game of school.

During pep rallies, juniors wear spirit hats they're selling and play "We've got spirit, yes, we do . . ." with the seniors on the opposite side of the gym.

The planning starts in the fall for the Prom with juniors rushing and disorganized.

The class of '76—happy they're no longer sophs, anticipating their senior year and enjoying being a junior.

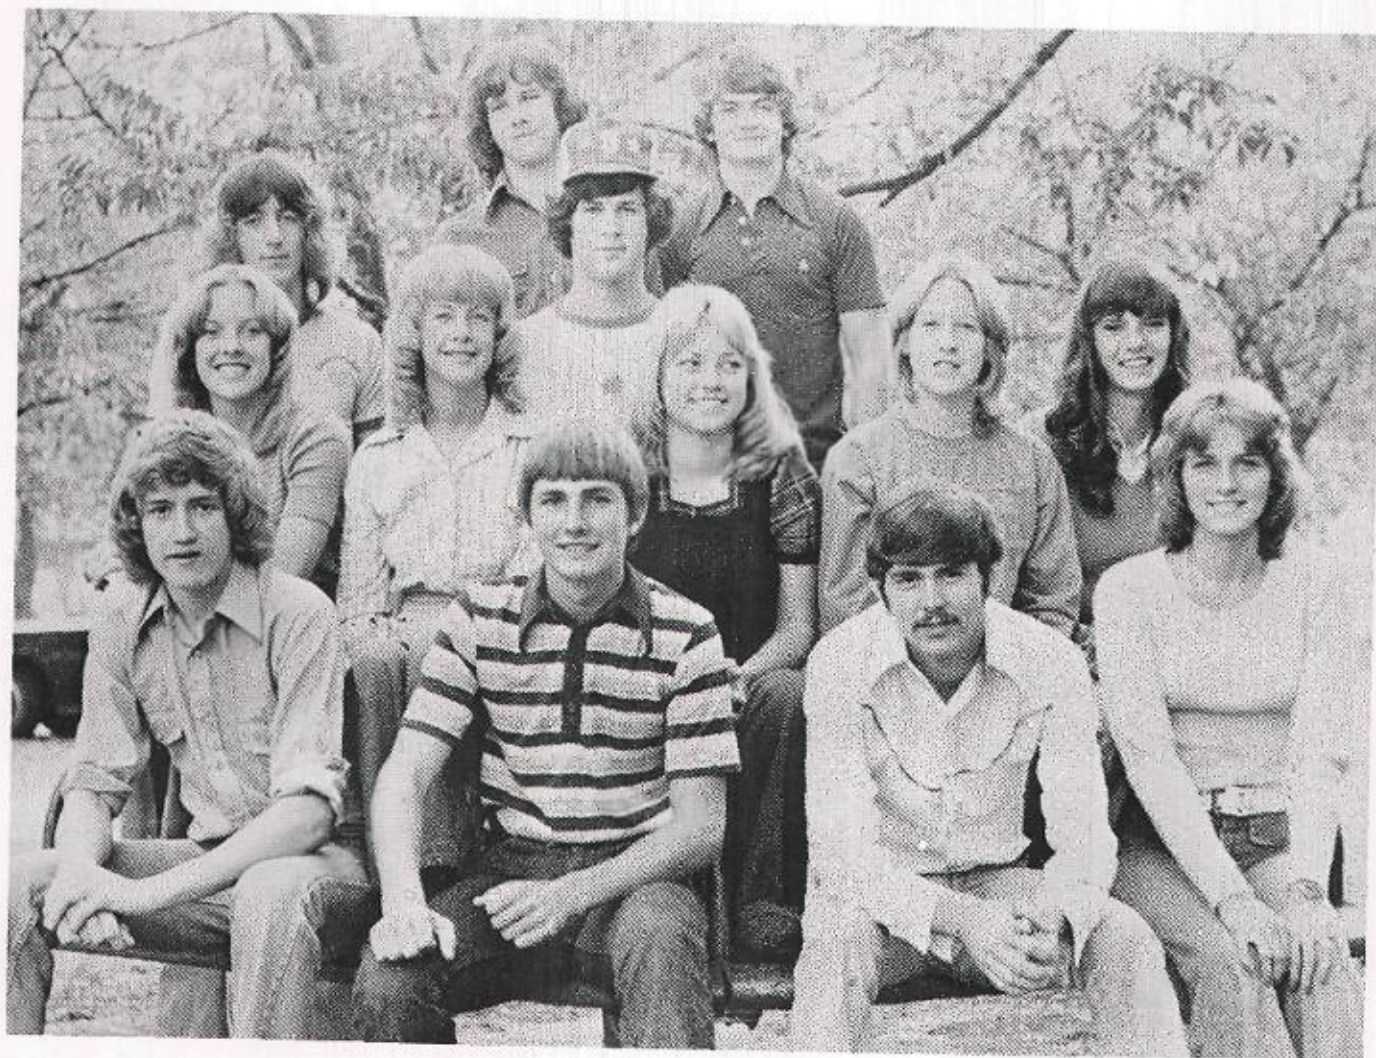

1. Junior class council contemplates this year's activities. 2. Junior class officers: Beverly Evans, secretary; Theta Neal, president; Jinny Sykes, vice-president.

Remember the first day, walking in and saying—
 "Wow! How will I ever find my way around?"
 But sophomores soon find out where the attendance office is, which side of the hall to walk on and where to go if they just want chocolate milk for lunch.

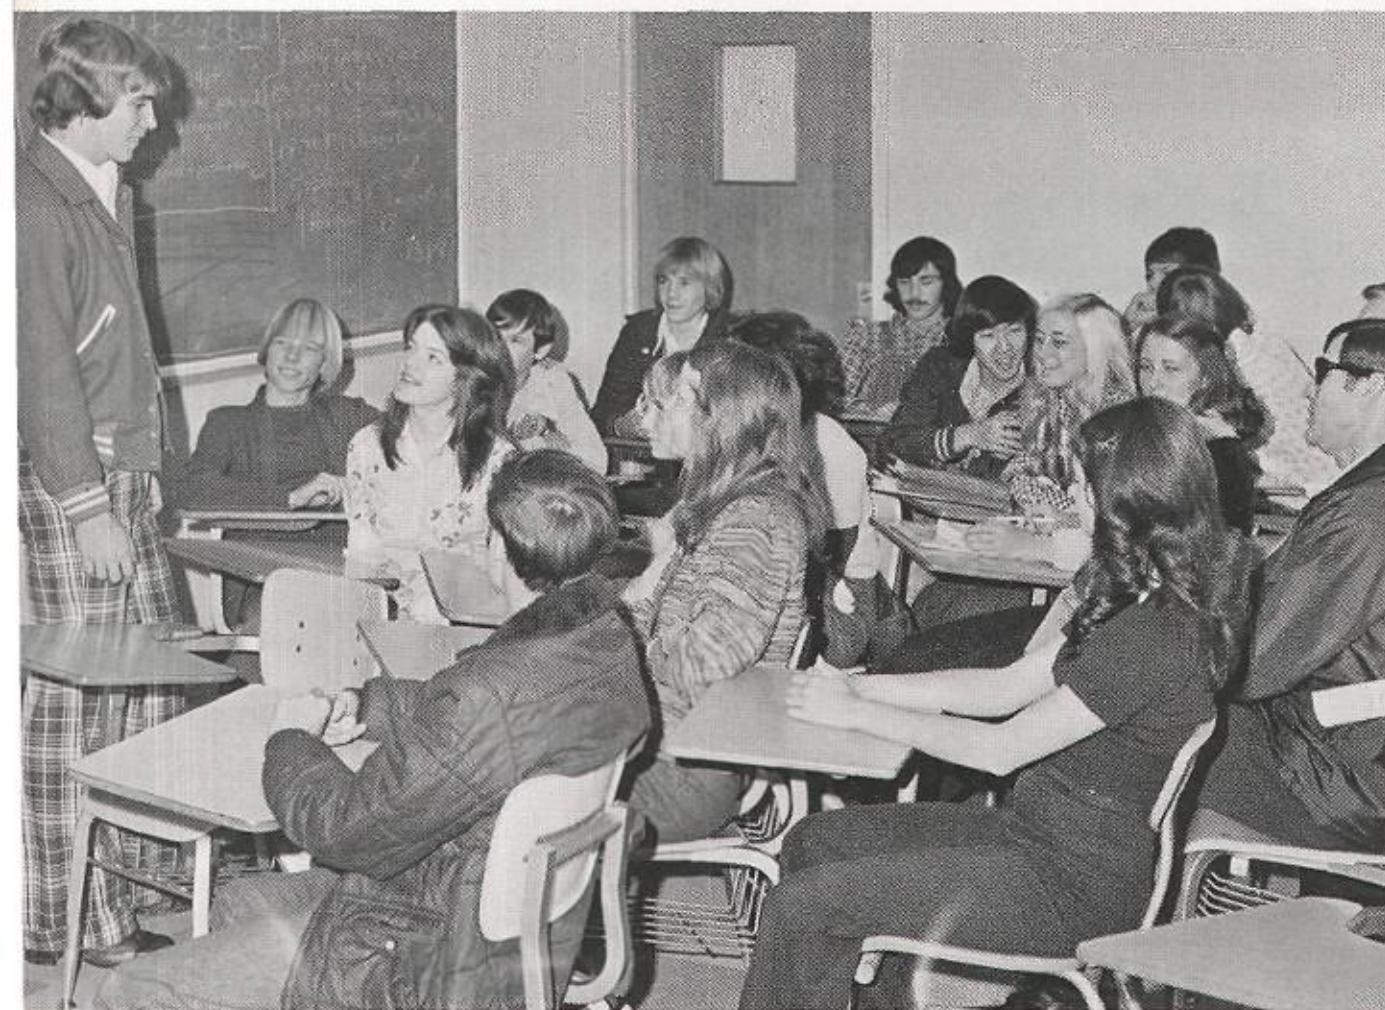

By the second week of school, they learn to laugh along when hearing "Where'r you 'post ta be?" and that it's not that easy . . . walking into the counselor's office and saying you don't think you're going to like a certain class if you want out.

The next step is sitting in the lobby being boisterous before school and during lunch—and suddenly they are a part of the student body.

fashion

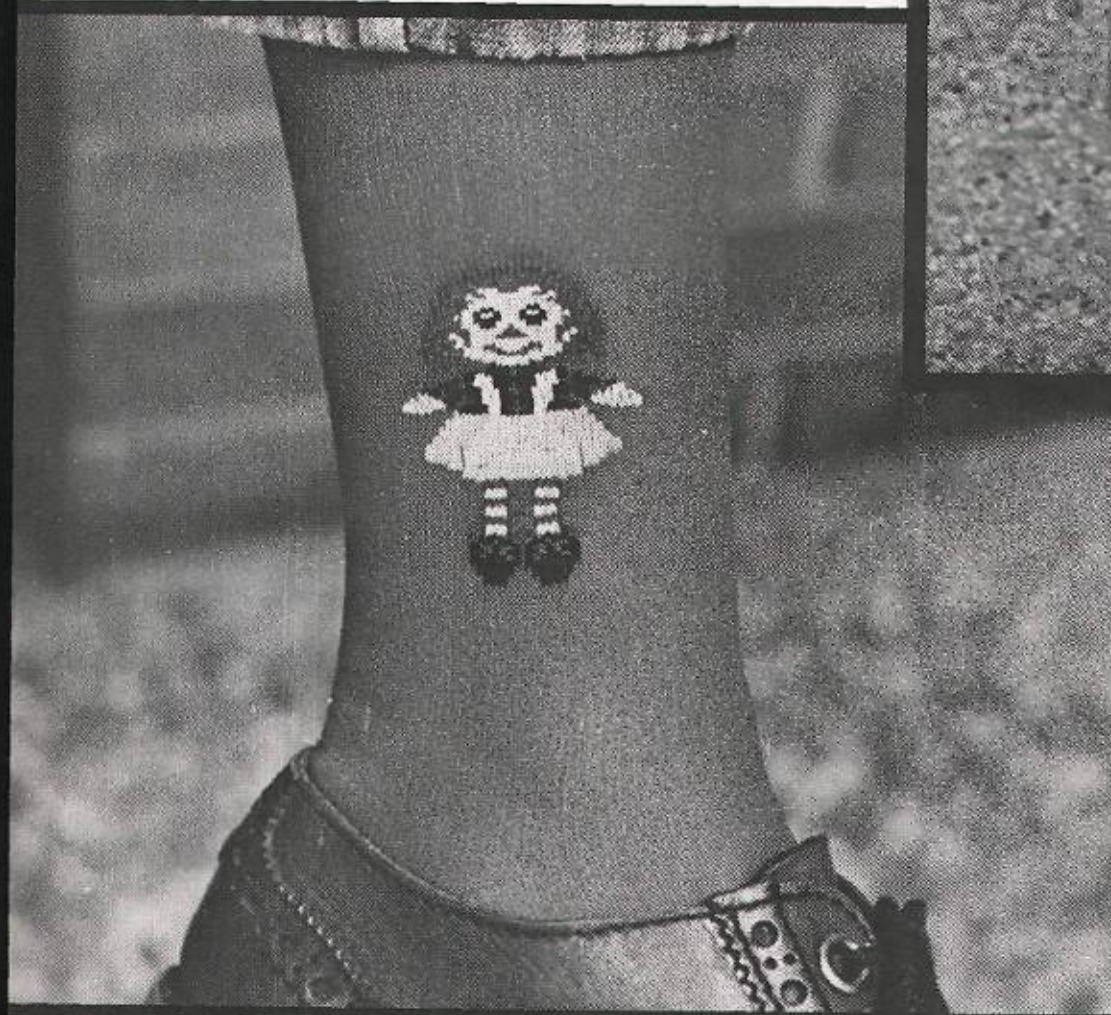

Winter sandals—most effective over sox, not to keep feet warm. Leisure suits—newest in '75 for comfortable dressing up. Cloth purses—those easy to carry and lacking organizational capacity. Western shirts—even the Roy Rogers variety and preferably with contrasting yoke. Applique—do-it-yourself or store-bought; added interest to any apparel.

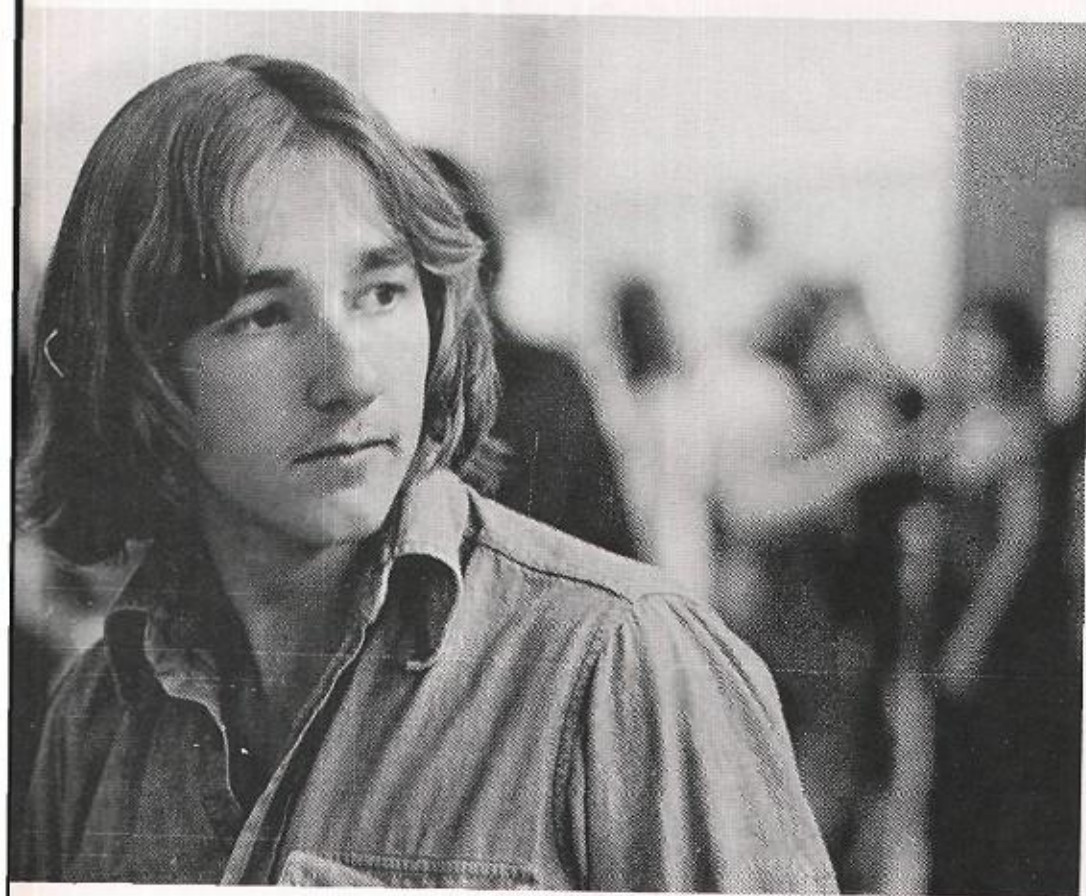

Clunky jewelry—generally lacking jewels or gems, in wood; they may be inconvenient. Long skirts—camouflage for any shape legs; most in darker colors. Sox—wild and wooly, practical; worn in pairs. Bandanas—convenient to pull up from neck over mouth for smoky restrooms.

GOOD TIMES

Good times never do last long enough. Who has the energy to laugh longer than a couple'a minutes?

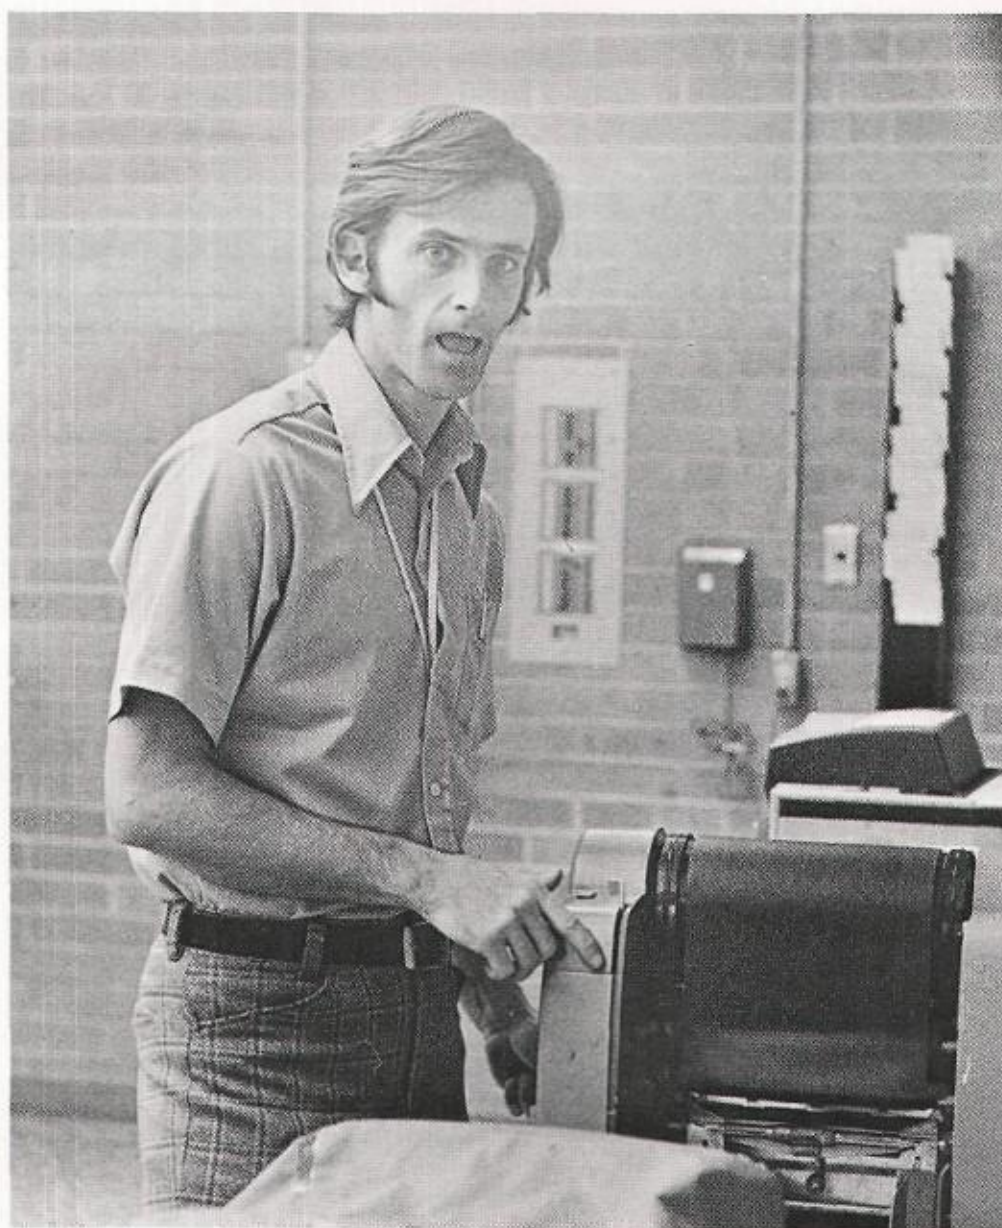

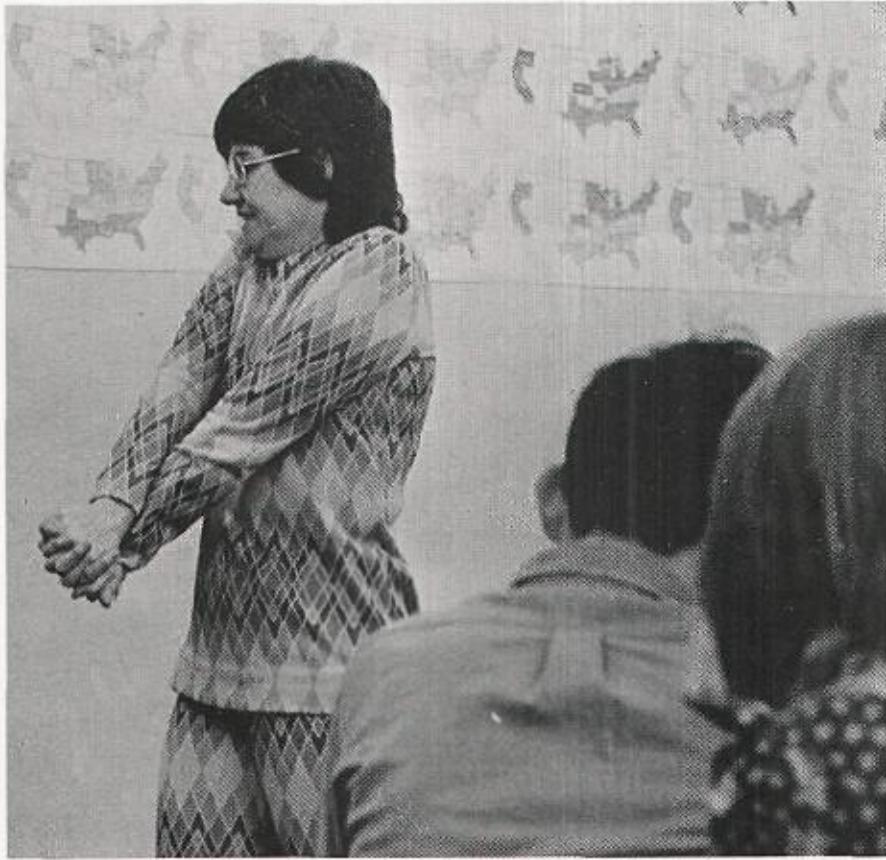

TEACHERS

It's a revelation to find out that some teachers are part-time people. "Teachers make mistakes, too," they often remind students. And the high points of their days are hardly grading papers, tutoring after school or the dreaded requirement—duty.

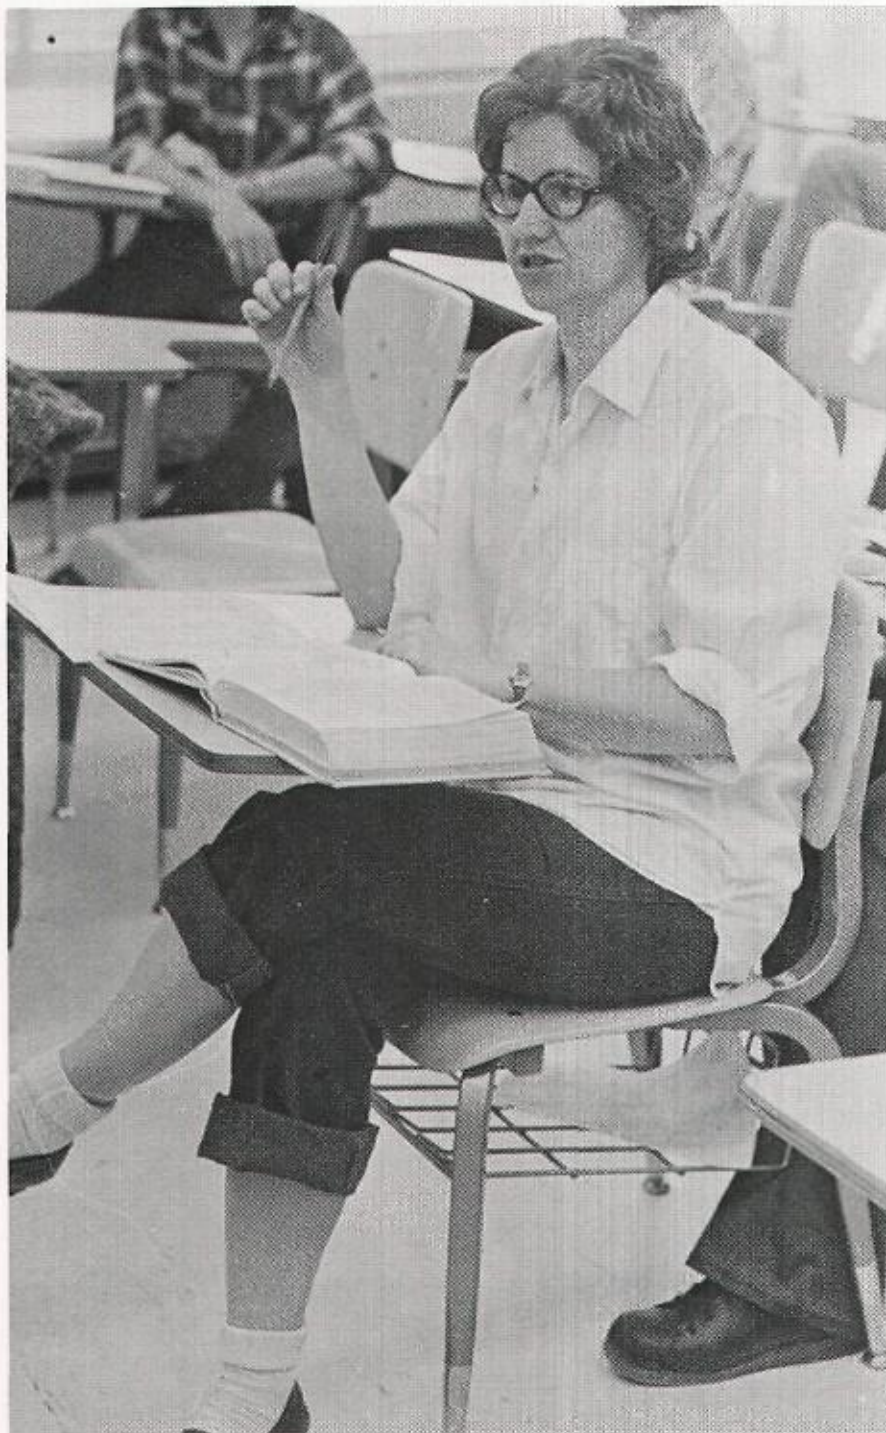

Coming home after school to plop in that favorite easy chair, relaxing for only a minute, then meeting demands of family or friends and forgetting bell-shaped curves and red felt-tip pens.

A weekend at the lake forces stares from surprised students, unaware of common interests and pastimes. Riding bikes with the family, shopping around town, and eating hamburgers with a date provides for interesting infiltration of student activities.

BLACKMAIL

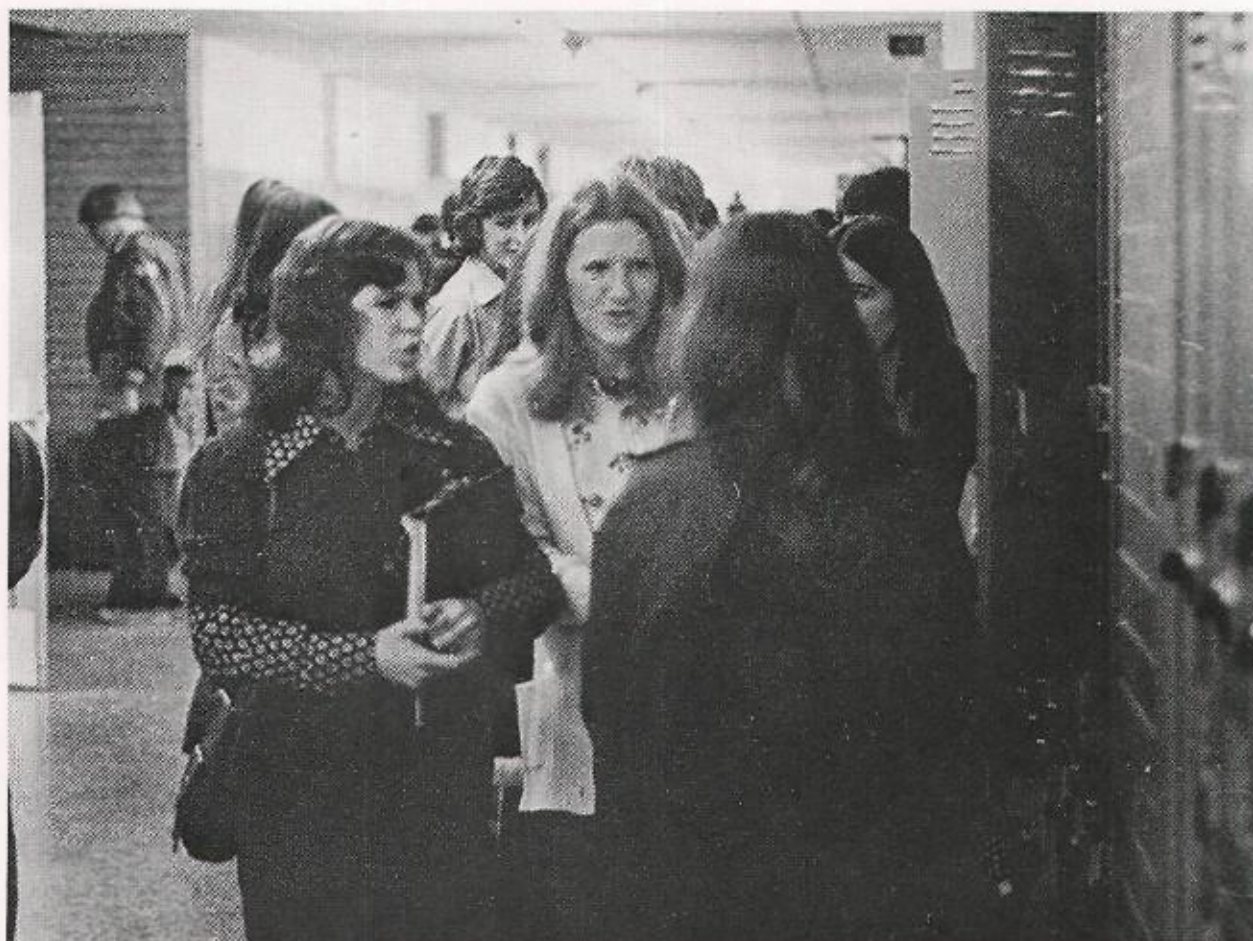

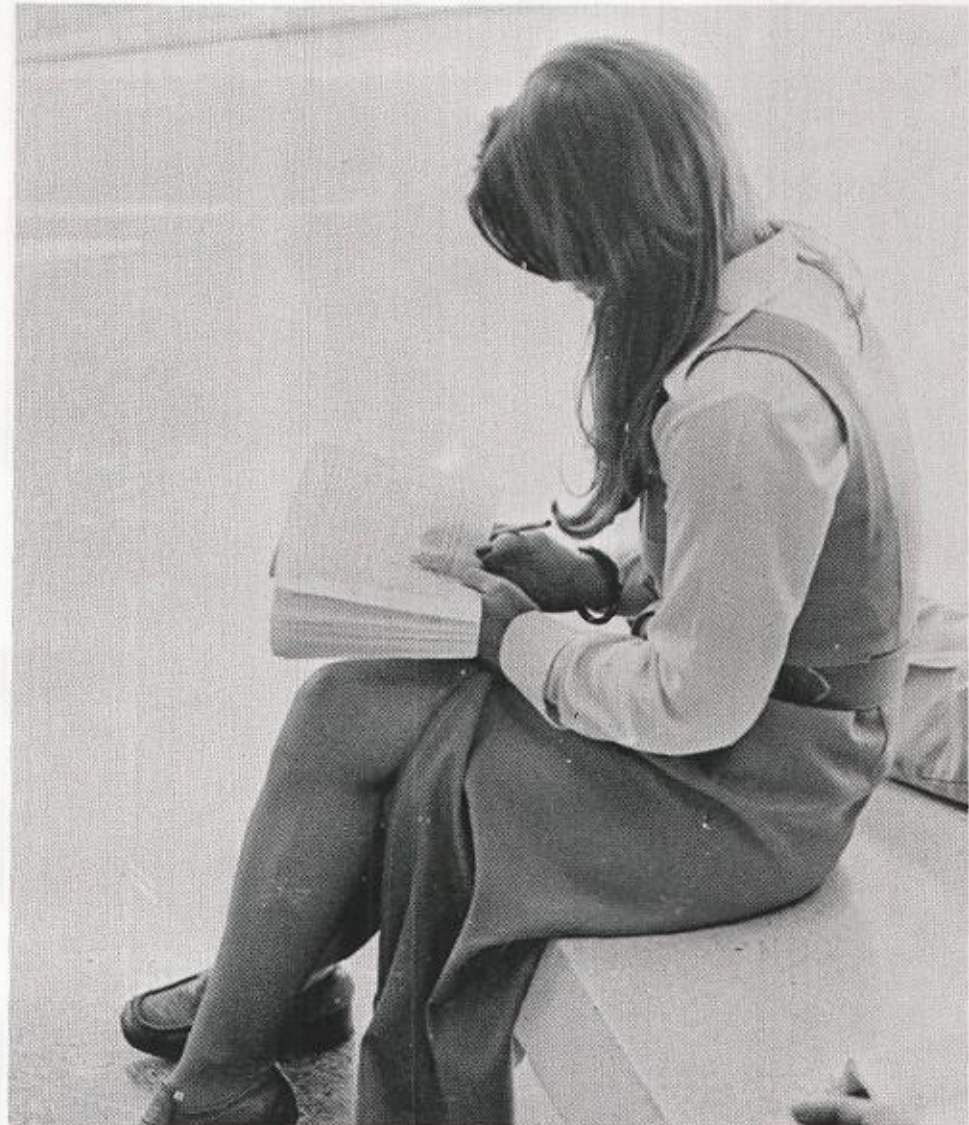

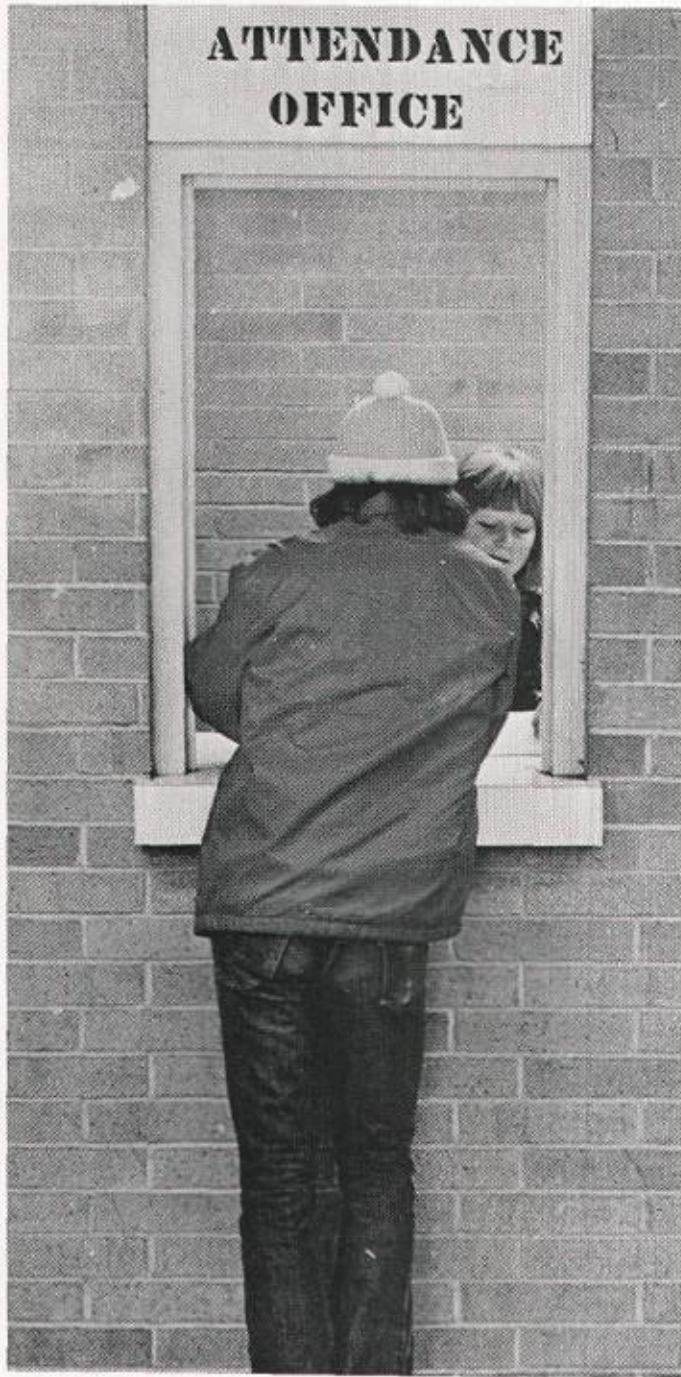

IT'S ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Let's hear it for constructed days. Drag out of bed, arrive at school, open your locker (if you can remember the combination at 7:55
A.M.), march on to class, eat lunch, go home and there's always the next day to start over. In between, there's time for insignificant things or thoughts like waiting for a soft lay-z-boy in your living room.

WHERE ARE ALL MY FRIENDS?

Expressions of a year are as varied as the people composing it. Yet there is a recognizable one we see every day. Not only a facial expression, but one using an atmosphere: loneliness. Everyone knows the feeling of emptiness; everyone can identify with being alone in a crowd.

If we'd never been lonely, we never would know the silent joy of having a good friend close by.

DOGS 9-2

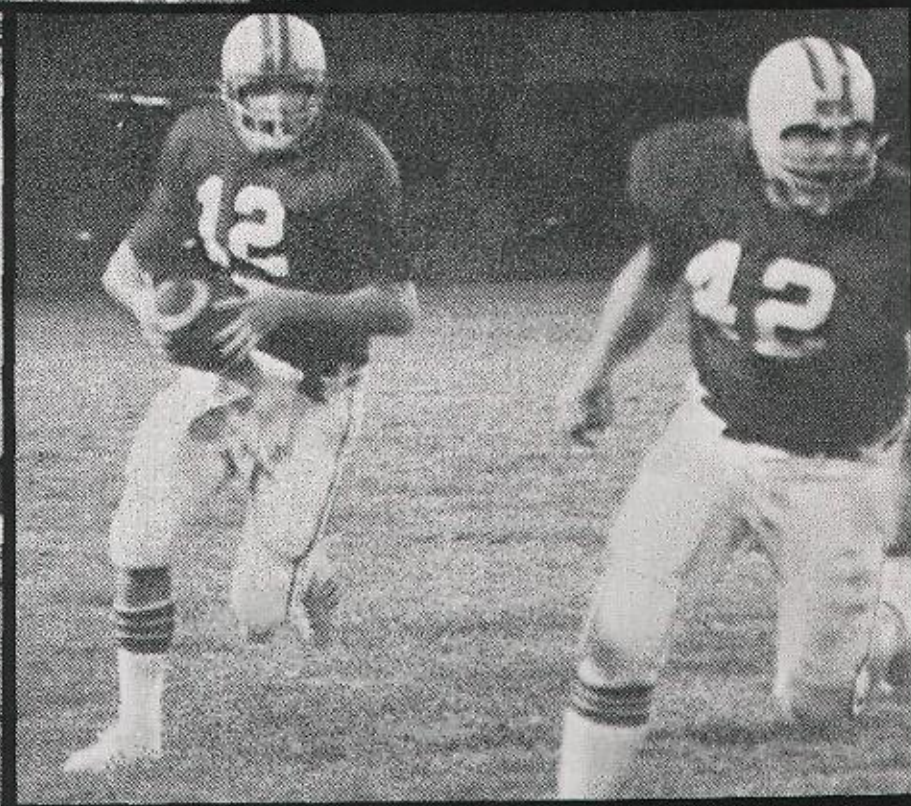

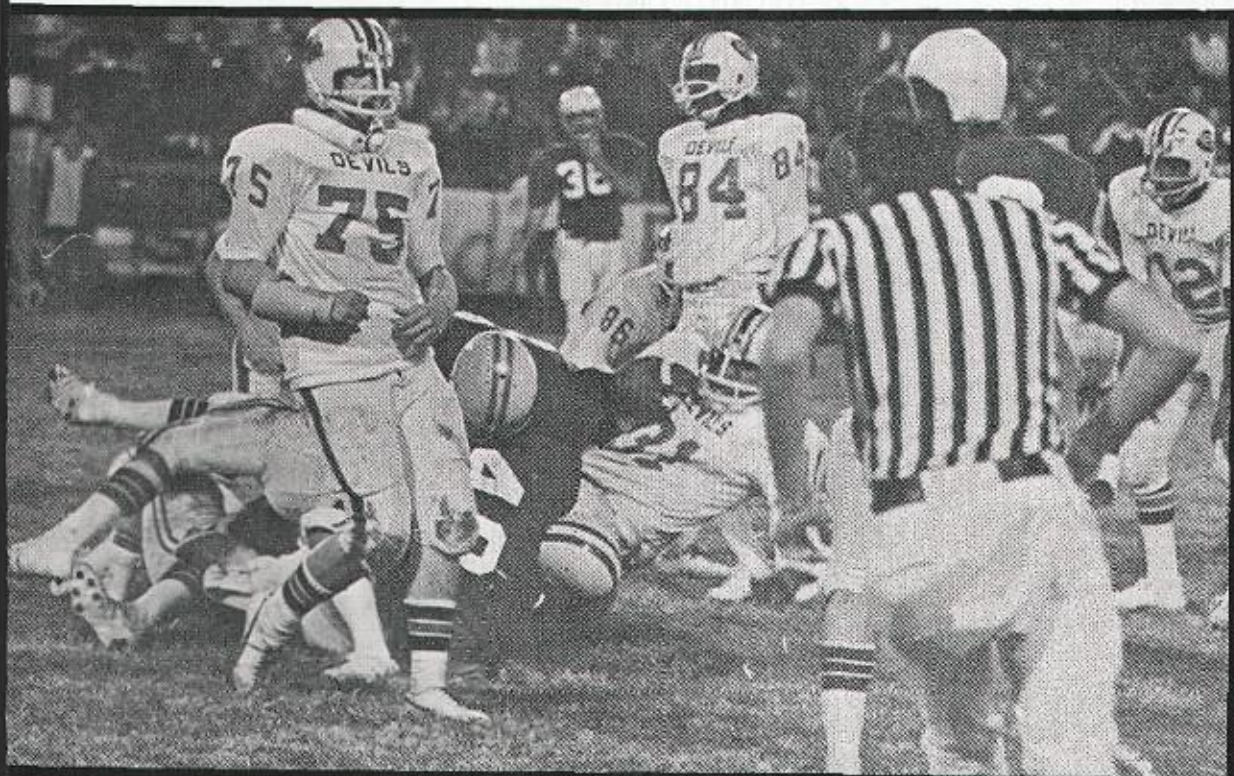

The best season since 1969, nine wins and only two losses, proved all the pre-season predictions wrong. Hard work and determination started the season well as the Dogs defeated Spiro, 16-0. On a very controversial call, the Dogs next lost to Northside, 13-12. From that game on, they put it together defeating Rogers 14-9, Glendale 14-7, Conway 14-7, Siloam Springs 20-7, Fayetteville 13-12, Southside 7-5, North Little Rock Ole Main 10-0 and finished their conference season with a 9-0 triumph over Russellville.

The first and last game of the play-offs was a great disappointment, with the Dogs' mistakes taking their toll as the West Memphis Blue Devils capitalized, leaving Springdale on the short end of a 14-13 score. Finishing the year 7th in the state was certainly some consolation.

BASKETBALL

The year began without promise; the tallest player was 6'4", and many were inexperienced. In spite of that, 13-10 was the record. Jim Moore and Kenny Lockhart were selected for the AAA West All-Conference team, with Moore leading the Dogs in both scoring and rebounds. He averaged 12.7 points per game making 287 points in the season and grabbed 163 rebounds while he was at it.

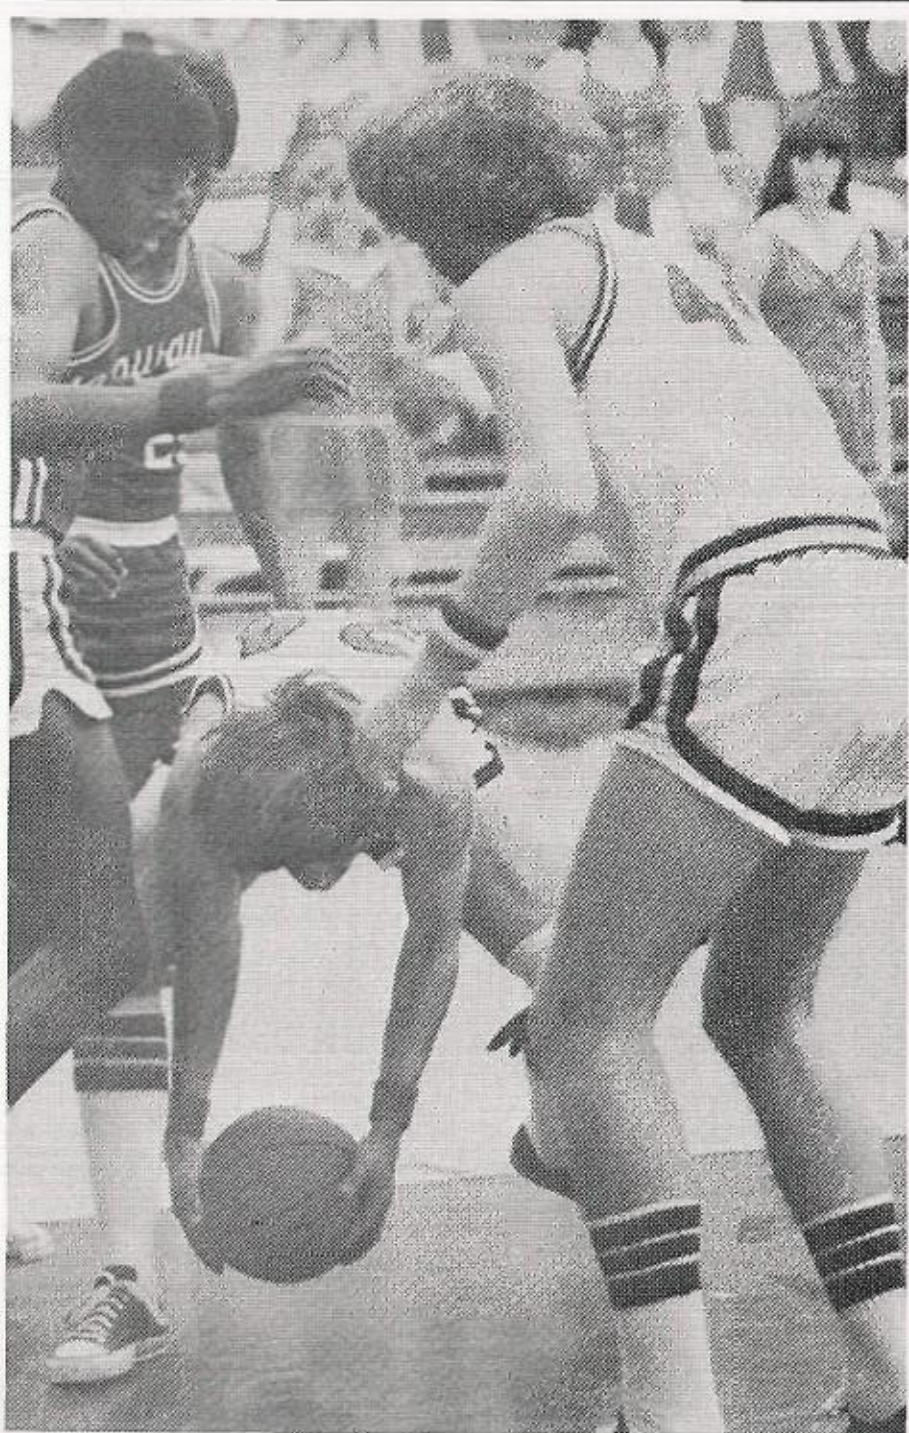

Big moments of the year were as always—screaming fans, controversial calls and long shots. An extra was losing twice to arch-rival Fayetteville, later to become the AAA State Champion. Springdale won their own tournament, placing three on that All-Tourney team—Richard Zachary, Richard Roberts and Jeff Charlesworth. In J. V. action, high scorer was Bill Bailey with 189 points. They finished 9-11.

BASKETBALL

GIRLS

Practice requires time. Time that could be spent socially, studying or privately.

Time that starts in off-season and continues through the season. You compete with yourself, others on other teams. But competition is the theme of a newly organized girls basketball team. To the players, the word "girl" is irrelevant, and "team" is the word in capitals.

A team that fought for recognition and got puny attendance at their games, that fought for appropriate funding and got new uniforms, that fought as the Springdale Bulldogs and achieved a 6-7 record . . . not bad for the beginning.

Next year, things will be easier for the girls basketball team from SHS.

Supporters

Sports is more than just the games; it's the band, the crowd, the coach, the injuries, and very importantly, the supporters. Supporters who will sit under dripping wet plastic, crowd into a hot gym, strain to see across the track, attend golf and tennis matches when no one else is there, travel to out-of-town games and do all they can to stand behind the program however bleak things look.

These people deserve recognition. The Bulldog 1975 presents this section in honor of these faithful backers.

1. Seniors Stan Shoemaker and Jeff Newman cutting up. 2. Bill Hairston at his journalism birthday party. 3. Kent Whillock, Editor.

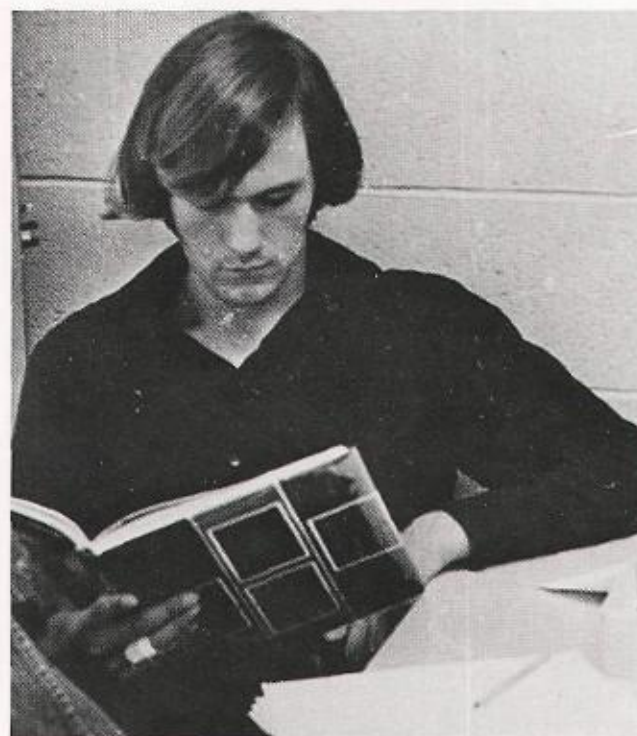

The BULLDOG HERALD is: digging for stories or ripping one off real quick, typing them up and handing them in, sending them to West Fork to be set, para-typing heads, pasting them down, sending pages to Mr. Stamps for the "go-ahead", then to Springdale NEWS to be printed, picking them up, distributing them, counting dimes and starting over. How come it sounds so simple?

BULLDOG

"When did you say the deadline was?" . . .
"But we never have the pictures we need." . . . "Who messed up the darkroom?"
"Would everybody shut up and listen?"
"Another page is d-o-n-e!" . . . "And we're working tonight at 7:30." . . . "Quit hiding the crop tape, Laura." . . . And a chorus of 28 screaming, "It's finished!"

Strangers enter.
Friends leave.
Students start.
Graduates finish.

Another year gone;
like Christmas,
wondering how the day
was spent so fast.
Over? But
just today I saw a smile I'd never seen before . . .
